Mamie E. Wiggins was born on December 3, 1910 in Waycross, Georgia. Her family migrated to Philadelphia and settled in the Elmwood section of the city. There, Mamie faithfully attended St. Cyprian Episcopal Church, which later merged with St. Barnabas, Haddington. At St. Barnabas, Mamie served as Rector's warden and co-founded St. Barnabas Mission for the Homeless with the late Rev. R. Neil Hubbard. For almost two decades, Mamie faithfully fed and housed the homeless. Inspired by God who enable Mamie to assist her daughter Audrey Wiggins through a serious illness, Mamie believed that while she could never fully return God's favor, she could at least do some of God's work. As warden of St. Barnabas, Mamie was instrumental with the church's merger with St. George's, and was a faithful member of St. George St. Barnabas until her death. A stalwart Episcopalian, Mamie served as a delegate to Diocesan Convention and a member of Diocesan Council. She was an alternate deputy to the General Convention, a member of the Episcopal Church Women at every church she attended, and of the Altar Guild and Daughters of the King at St. George St. Barnabas Episcopal Church.

Rest eternal grant to her, O Lord, and let light perpetual shine upon her.
